Foreword

In her several years effort to collect the material included in these cemetery lists Barbara Grindle scoured old records and, with her husband Burt breaking ground ahead of her, trudged through burying grounds that dated to as early as the late 1700s. Some of these sites were hard to find amidst the thick brush or were nearly lost among the trees and forest detritus that had overtaken the once open pastures. At least one cemetery had no gravestones and only existed in the memories of town elders. It was never an easy task but Barbara's dedication to saving town history and the human stories reflected in these silent memorials are a gift from her to those who have passed and to those who have come after.

Acknowledgements

As a member of the Rural Cemetery Association, Sedgwick, I realized that there was only one set of records for that cemetery and those dated from the 1860s. If anything happened to them there would be no record of those buried in the cemetery so I volunteered to put the existing records on the computer. Little did I know what I had volunteered for! The first list clearly didn't include everyone. Then I was given a list done by Edmund Williams and recorded on disc by Brenda Means, both of Brooklin, of the old part of the cemetery that included an additional 300 names! I decided that a stone-to-stone check was the only way to get everyone. Many years later I have been educated! Accurate cemetery records are not easy to come by!

This catalog of Sedgwick Resting Places has been compiled from records of local cemetery associations, the Sedgwick-Brooklin Historical Association (SBHS) and from my own stone-to-stone observations. Still, the names of people who had no gravestone or monument may have been lost because most written documentation has not been passed down to the present guardians of these resting places. There may be other burial sites still to be discovered.

My special thanks to Gary Welland, Kathleen Hickman and Pam Simmons for their extensive help with the technical and background details of self-publishing. I couldn't have done this update without them. My thanks also to the people who have helped me on my quest; Edmund and Brenda for the "old cemetery list"; Alice Powers for her writing, mapping and advice; my sister Jane McVay for the reading, writing and digging; and my husband Burt for his patience, interest and breaking trails on our hunting expeditions. I could not have done this resting places project without the support of all these people as well as many, many others.

The SBHS provided lists of burying grounds and of the people thought to be buried in them. We have investigated as many as we could find and confirmed their lists as well as adding to them in some cases. These lists may not be complete and I realize there may be errors and omissions, but it is a step in the right direction. It is an ongoing project and with the help of anyone who can add to my information, perhaps we can get better records for future generations. If you do have information, please contact me, the appropriate cemetery association, or the SBHS. For those interested in additional information related to the people of Sedgwick, I recommend you visit the on-line site: <https://www.sedgwickmaine.org/sargentville-library-historical-archive/>.

It is important to remember that many burying grounds are on private land and permission to access the site should be obtained from the landowner. I have found the majority of these landowners to be very caring about the resting places and pleased to have someone interested in them. They take excellent care of the stones and the grounds around them. We hope that future generations will continue this interest and loving care. If they don't, we will lose all records of our ancestors and, therefore, our heritage.

Asa Gray Burying Ground

This cemetery is located on the south side of Route 175 and is no longer visible from the road. It is surrounded by granite slabs, one of which is falling over. The oldest stone is dated January 19, 1882. The "Baby" grave is situated just outside the cemetery itself and there is a rumor that the baby was not allowed in the enclosure for religious reasons. The only inscription is "BABY 1943"

Grindle Burying Ground

This burying ground is located off Ridge Road behind what was known as Violette's house. The house has been torn down. As we explored this burying ground expecting to find the two known stones, we were surprised to find an initialed footstone. What a joy to be able to identify the initials, MEG, as the 11th child of Joshua and Prudence Grindle. You can be sure that members of the Grindle family will be exploring further!

Herrick Road Burying Ground

The book issued for Sedgwick's bicentennial celebration lists this cemetery as having one stone, unreadable. The Historical Society's list has one stone with partial information. People that grew up in this area tell me that fifty or sixty years ago it was quite a large cemetery with several stones in various stages of preservation. Here is another treasure to be unlocked.

This burying ground is located on the shores of the Bagaduce River on private property. At present there are only two stones, but more are reputed to have been here. Perhaps the landowners will have luck in finding other stones in their effort to resurrect this ground.

Pine Grove Cemetery

This active cemetery was formerly on the side of Route 172 in full view of everyone traveling in North Sedgwick. The construction of a new, improved highway deprives us of the sight of the graceful arch and white fence that surround this cemetery. The Pine Grove Cemetery Association keeps this cemetery clean and neat. The first burial was that of 47 year old Nathaniel Allen in 1789.

Ridge Road Burying Ground

Located beside the road midway along the Sedgwick Ridge Road, this plot is in clear view. We located the stones of two children that had not been recorded. One of these stones, dated Jun 12, 1823 was that of Joseph Carter, Jr. age 11. This seems to be the oldest stone in the cemetery. Volunteers care for this resting place.

Notes on Cemetery and Gravestone Care

When I researched this page in 1999 I visited Mrs. Dunn of Dunn's Monuments, Water Street, Ellsworth, ME. We had a lovely visit and I gathered a lot of helpful information.

In the years since I first published these lists I have become aware of the work being done by the Maine Old Cemetery Association (MOCA)<sup>1</sup>. This active group provides materials that include detailed information about cleaning gravestones, restoring old cemeteries, the symbolism of gravestone engravings and cemetery law. They also provide workshops with hands-on training.

I encourage you to visit their web site at <https://www.moca-me.org>.

Key points from MOCA on cleaning gravestones:

Before you begin any cemetery work check with town officials, a Sexton, a Cemetery Association or the property owner to get permission to begin cleaning.

- NEVER USE BLEACH or POWER WASHERS TO CLEAN GRAVESTONES and DON'T CLEAN ZINC MEMORIALS! Each process can cause significant damage.
- Use soft bristle brushes, tooth brushes, soft wooden craft sticks, and lots of clean water to clean the stones.
- Remove loose, dry material with a soft-bristled brush.
- Clean the sides and back of the stone first, then lastly the front.
- Always wash the stone from BOTTOM UP to avoid streaking.
- Use small circular motions as you work.
- Change the water often. Dirty water can scratch the stone.
- Clean out engraved and recessed areas of the stone with soft wooden craft sticks, if necessary.
- Finish the cleaning process by rinsing the entire stone with COPIOUS amounts of clean water. A pump sprayer is ideal.

In cases where mosses, lichens or other growth cannot be removed with just water MOCA recommends the use of D2. All D2 residue must be thoroughly rinsed off after the stone has been treated. See MOCA for specific instructions.<sup>2</sup>

Repair of stones that are leaning, have fallen or are broken should be done by folks who have had the kind of special training provided in MOCA workshops.

Acid rain is one of the worst enemies of our cemeteries. It eats away at all types of stone and will eventually make them more difficult to read. Yearly maintenance and care will help keep the stones from further deterioration.
